Waiter: Table for two, sir?

Brian: Yes, please.

Waiter: Can I get you any drinks?

Brian: Two glasses of water, please. And the menu.

Waiter: We have a standard set lunch menu. Here you are.

There are three courses. You can choose one dish for each course.

Brian/Tracy: Thank you.

Waiter: Here is your water. Have you decided what to order?

Tracy: Hmm. It all looks so good! What is the pork satay, exactly?

Waiter: It's pieces of pork in a peanut butter sauce ... quite sweet. Very tasty!

Tracy: That sounds delicious! I'll have that to start with.

Waiter: Very good. One pork satay ... And for you, sir?

Brian: Are the spring rolls very spicy?

Waiter: Not too spicy, sir, no ... but they come with a sweet chilli sauce.

Brian: Hmm. I think I'll have the chicken and coconut soup, thanks.

Waiter: Fine. And what would you like for main course, madam?

Tracy: What's the difference between the red curry and the green curry?

Waiter: The red curry is made from red chillies, so it's a bit hotter. The green curry is milder and more creamy.

Tracy: Green prawn curry for me then, thanks.

Brian: And the same for me. And for dessert I'll have the fruit salad.

Tracy: And I'll have the fried banana, thanks.

Waiter: Very good, madam. Thank you.

Brian/Tracy: Thank you.

Part 2

Brian: Well, I couldn't eat another thing! That fruit salad was great!

Tracy: Yes, it looked really fresh.

Brian: How about your fried banana? You haven't eaten much.

Tracy: Mm, it's a bit too sweet for my taste.

Brian: That's a shame.

Tracy: The pork satay was fantastic, though. And the green curry was pretty good too. I enjoyed the meal.

Brian: So did I. The best part for me was the soup. I agree the green curry was OK but it wasn't anything special. Anyway, overall it was worth it. I'll be coming here again, that's for sure!

Tracy: Me too. Perhaps we should make this a regular thing, Brian ... every Friday?

Brian: Hmm. That sounds like a nice idea, Tracy. Why not!

Waiter: Was everything all right with your meal?

Brian/Tracy: Great, thanks!

Waiter: Would you like any coffees or anything?

Brian: No, thanks. Just the bill. We must get back to work.
